Several factors support environmental and sustainable land management programs to include communication, education, and proper application. Through workshops, short courses, and training programs, the Center works with land managers and military trainers toward the successful application of ideas, techniques, and programs.

The Center hosts workshops, short courses, and training at Colorado State University (CSU) and in the area surrounding Fort Collins. Computer labs, classrooms, and banquet facilities are available on campus and retreat facilities are available off campus. Courses and workshops can be customized to meet specific needs and can occur in Fort Collins as well as at on-site locations.

WORSHOP EXPERTISE

- Geographical Information Systems (GIS)-beginner to advanced, tailored for the military land manager or other audience
- Monitoring and Data Management
- Field training in plant and animal identification, equipment, and field techniques
- Varied audiences